The Persecuted Church

"I want to tell you about Lanju Miah. Lanju Miah is a believer from a Muslim background in Bangladesh who, upon choosing to be baptized, has experienced persecution from his family and community.

Lanju Miah made the bold choice last October to be baptized and publicly proclaim his faith. His family and community have been pressuring him ever since to renounce his faith and return to Islam. As Lanju Miah continues to refuse, they have blocked his access to community resources, like the community well and latrine. The persecution has really affected his mental health and he is finding it very hard to continue to withstand the pressure.

Unfortunately, Lanju Miah's experience is common amongst believers who choose to be baptized. This public declaration of faith can mean a loss of belonging, livelihood and even home.

Will you please pray for Lanju Miah and believers like him who are ostracized from their family and community? Will you pray for strength and comfort as they withstand this immense pressure?"
